HONOKONG, NOVEMBER 10TH, 1876.

In the Peking Gazette of the 8th ultimo we find some interesting particulars of the recent agitation in the province of Chekiang. The city of Wenchow would seem to have been the centre from which the secret conspirator. directed the movement. They are said to belong to a society known as the " Gold Coin." which organised a rebellion in the roign of the Emperor Hren-rows. A man named SHE HUNG-Ao is accused of being the leader in the compiracy. Ho was formerly intimate with Li Shim-nien, one of the chiefs of the Taiping rebellion, and figured prominently in the Gold Coin insurrection. It appears that he was in the habit of collecting his adhorents under the pretence of conducting religious services, and on one occasion the Sub-Prefeet of Yung-kia surprised the traitors while assembled together. SEE HUNG-AO and several more were taken prisoners. The officer also seized a number of soditious books. containing incantations, magic writing, and treasonable sentiments; a wooden seal bearing the legend "Heaven's Right Way : vollow silk badges with the words "Guard the Imperial Embryo"; gold coins; and foreign weapons. Sue Hung-Ao, it is said, confessed, when examined-probably under forture, however-that he had come to Yung-kin for the purpose of inflaming the public mind and propagating sedition SHE HUNG-AO at one time, it seems, joined the Roman Catholic Church, but it is doubtful whether he ever thought much about religion, but rather used it as a cloak for his disloyal intrigues. It is not surprising, therefore, to hear that when a French misbionary was appealed to, he stated that although the prisoner had embraced the Catholic faith, the articles found in his were not things used in the Church, and he requested that the law might be allowed to take its course. The result was that a very brief period indeed was suffered to clapse before Mr. Sas Hungto lost his head and the incinient rebellion of it notil the 4th instant

The greatest loss of all was Robin Hood who fell under the other burses, and notwithstanding the efforts of Davis, Morrison, and Harris, and the chief officer, he also was killed. In the meanwhile the terrible seas that swept over the ship bad carried away two boats, and smashed another. Then a fourful sea stove in one side of the engine-room, and the saloon was flooded with water. Men were kept employed baling out the cabine night and day. All day on Monday the gale bigw with terrific force, and the ship kept dodging about at sea, most of the passengers fearing for her safety. Captain Stappoole, of the ship Shunnon, kept up the spirits of the male passengers, and Mrs. Stacpoole those of female passengers, though one or two of the latter orested some niarm by their fears. Nearly every bed in the soloon was saturated with water and few of the passengers slept night or day. On Tuesday morning there were signs of a slight improvement, and the captain steered a course for Sydney Heads. The Sylvia colt was the last of the horses to die, and then the Ohrysolite cult and Redwood were the only two eft of the eleven abipped. The former fell down, and it was feared he would die, but Davis and Morrison stuck to him manfully, and just as the colt appeared to be at the point of death the Heads were sighted, and the ship was soon n smooth water. Another quarter of an boar at sea would have been facel to the Derby winner. The passengers raised a subscription for the crew, and a testimonial was presented to the captain by a portion of the passengers, though Mr. Kit, the chief officer, was considered by others entitled to one also. An eye-witness writes us follows to the Eng- very great." ishman: - A dreadful disease, becoming wellknown under the name of kollectio, has braken out in several parts of North Eastern Bengal. It is rumoured to have first made its appearance in some villages near Ampts, whence its ravages have extended to the extreme Eastern part of Calcuttar but now it has spread all over the country lying on both sides of the Ganges It is somewhat like the poison of the obra. It first attacks either the toes, or the fingers, and then affects the whole body, when t becomes dangerous and destructive to human life. Yesterday, at about five o'clock, a carpenter and a Hindustani of Silipore were attacked by this disease, and there being no remedy at hand, they first bound their fingers with strings, and then applied a native autidote, named Gratokumari, by which means they have been owed. However, as the disease is most prevalent bere. I think it is necessary for our medical practitioners not to leave a stone anturned to find some sure and immediate remedy for the poison; and I shall feel much obliged if you will kindly give this letter i prominent insertion, so as to attract their

An Alexandria correspondent writes to. The Simes under date September 16:-" The horse disease is, I fear, spreading fust. ALGERIA AND INDIA

The Paris correspondent of The Times, writing on the 26th September, says :- A Bonapartist organ, which, now that Imperialism is noder a cloud, is apt to represent the prospects of France and the world as equally gloomy, stated a day or two ago that the Algerian Mussulmans were uncasy at the critical state of Turkey, and that an outbreak was to be apprehended. This has drawn forth an official communique, which affirms that the Algerians are perfectly tranquil, A of the Tribes not in regular contact with Europeans, and consequently less distructful and reserved than natives in constant intercourse with the colonists. The result of his inquiry bas convinced him that the general idea of Massulman solidarity is unfounded. Whatever the case may have been during the first few centuries of Mahomedanism, the rivalry of different dynasties and the conflicting pretensions to supremacy of rulers at Bagdad, and, in Spain, Morocco, and Persia bave destroyed the sentiment of a common beadsbip. In Central and West Africa the Mahomedaus regard the Sultan of Morosco as Commander of the Faithful, a title which was assumed, too, by Abd el-Kader without troubling himself about the Grand Turk. If, therefore. the bundreds of millions of Mussulmans soatwere telegraphed to the South Austration Re- Antioquia, which is the most central of the nine tered over the globe sympathize with their gister on the 25th Sept., by its correspondent at States forming the Republic of the United brethern engaged in a war with Christians of Colombia; and the Vice-Consul, Mr. White. there is not even a remote resemblance to the solidarity of Christendom at the time of what is passing in the East. If a few Tolbas, a stantine, hordering on Tunis, it is impossible. the writer says, that these events produce a greater impression, but that impression certainly does not extend to the mountains inhabited by the Kabyles, an industrious and eneroitable race. Nowhere has there been any hint of The Sultan in person or with money. In the grovince of Oran people speak of the Sultan though during the subjugation of Algeria by the French rumours were got up of approaching deliverance by Ottomans or Moors, there hopes never led the masses to consider themselves in intimate relations with a foreign religious head. arising is there any fear of fanatios making capital out of Eastern affairs.

While the Dabate thus denies any cause for uponsinces in Algeria several other Paris papers. with their neual earnestness to proclaim that a neighbour's house is on fire, represent that the Hindoo Mussulmans are in a state of apple publishes the following :- "An Englishman writes to us from Calentta .- We have in India 150,000,000 of Mahomedan su jests who pelieve as firmly os the most believing of bristians, and renerate Constantinople just as the Catholics venerate Rome. Manifest nigns of disquistade are beginning to appear among

Now many Paris papers are in the habit of publishing letters and telegrams from distant parts of the world which certainly do not reach them by post, telegraph, or any ordinary means of communication, but are possibly written a slate by an invisible agency, and this piece of news evidently belonge to that class, It is to the last degree improbable that an Englishman in Calcutta should write to the France Nouvelle. It is even more improbable that & Caloutta Englishman should beignorant that Mecca, not Constantinople, is the object of Mussulman vegeration. There is, it seems, to be another highly patriotic statue erected in Scotland. present one is in honour of King Robert Bruce, Sir William Wullace having with difficulty been already boudared by the erection of a watchtower on the Abbey Graig, near Stirling. The site for the statue of Bruce is near Stirling Castle. The figure will be a colonsal one, and represents the "patriot king" sheathing his sword in the moment of victory.

Mr. J. P. Hodson, the scoretary of the Printers' Pension Corporation; has revived his suggestion for a celebration to commemorate the four hundredth anniversary of the introduction of the art of printing to Great Britain. His idea is to hold an exhibition of antiquities and cariosities connected with the art at some suitable place next June, and to arrange for the taking place of the jubilee festival of the Printere! Corporation during the same week.

The Academy states that Mr. Furnivall's first book for the New Shakespeare's Society is in the binder's bands. It is William Stafford's examination of the complaint of his countrymen in Shakespeare's youth, A.D. 1581, about the dearness (dearth) of things, and other general social troul-lest and it contains a good deal of information as to the condition of the country. The chief cause of the rise in prices Stafford holds to be the debasement of the coin by Henry VIII.

Fortunately, the Athenaum says, un eminent artist, from whom the Houses of Parliament have already received considerable benefits, was just in time the other day to propure the suspension, if not total stoppage, of operations likely to terminate in painting the whole exterior of the edifice! A sapient official had already built a scaffold, and set men to work on this promising job. Our readers know, of course, tuat a large portion of the interior of the "houses" was painted some years ago, thus utterly ruining the beautiful colour of the stone. Mesers. Cassell. PRONUNCIATION.

An Anglo-Chinese Dicrionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong. AOR comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of tate years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in estenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given, the accente being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. Thotypography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type corresponding the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a dearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration. Orders for Copies may be sent to the Daily balmers Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 190,000, whilst MACAO Mr. L. August 24th, 1702, Boys. I'll ulve your a song about one that's gone long. One that all true rood ealts should know; For no braver a one over stood to a gun. Than my hero old hold Benbow-

Though many a name has a better-known fame, I think tin a shame the do: So fill the min, men, and I li sing to you then; The deeds of old bold Benhow. A clipper was Drake; and a devil was Blake. Stout Dascan, Mynheer know well : Of Rodney and Unwke your Frenchmen don't talk

And of Howe's deeds we're proud to tell. Of Corhrane the hold you've aften been told. Of Jervis's pluch all know; But Noteon himself should be laid on the shelf As soon so old bald Benbow. He couldn't houst birth, but you'll see he was worth

A score of the done who could. Fine fair-weither men, they were nowhere when Ben. Alone through the Frenchman stood. They may make a fine fues of their high blood to us, But we know that it's often so, . That our holdest have passed from before the mest To glory like old Bonbow.

He was left in the lurch's he was not in search Of Im Casse, whom he long had sought? Through the West Indy Isles he had chased them for Add the skulkers at last hou caught. His turn t was come; they were hig ones tome, Ten sail; and says he, "We'll show founder the way to Snithead to-day Won't we lade?" says old bold Benbow.

So he flung out the sign to bear down on their line. Bat we'd balv six sail, d'you see! And our captains were nobs, and hot work such fine snobs Thought with them wouldn't quile agree; They funked; when they found he'd fight, they were round: How he swore when he saw them go! "But we don't no, my men, though we're but one to No, we'll fight them ! " said bold Beabow."

So ho left all behind, and before the wind Right into the ten he went; Then one captain took shome, and after him came :-Real work, lade, the old dog meant. At their Admiral's side hard to board he tried : At a first mto he then let go, And no more heard that, day of hers twee his way:

So he served them, did old Benhow. The work was too warm to last long; one arm Was gone; a shet tore his head; A gampon-ball their took his right leg; " My men. Bring a cradle on deck," he said. While life was in him, and his chip would but swim. He scorned, lads, to go below:

"If I die, boye;" says he, " never mind, d'you ses ; Fight it out I" says our fold Benbow. To his four shine in sight he still signalled on "fight." But they weren't of the fighting stuff: So they left Ben alone to swear and to grown. Till Mounteer found they'd onough. And so struck was he with old Bon, d'you see,

That a letter he sent : "two so:" "Had your Captains but lought as the cursed cowards ought. You'd have took me Moiniseer Benbow. "You'll hang them. I hopo; they deserve well the rope, And Do Casse's hint wasn't forgot : He thought 'twas but right, so in all the fleet's sight,"

On his deck they were tried and shot, "I've but one leg, by heaven, but, "lays he, "I'd have given That to save us this shame. I know !" Oh, he'd all Nelson's plack, though he hadn't his lack,
So here's glory to old Benbow. Well, old wells of oak have become just a joke, And in ten-kettles we're to fi ht;

It seems a queer dream, all this iron and steam. But I deresoy, my lads, it's right. But whether we float in ship or in boat, In iron or oak, we know, For old England's right we've hearts that will fight.

As of old did the brave Bonbow: From Songs for Sailnes, by W. C. BENNETT.
